SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Progress.

In the golden mase of the dear old days
There was time enough and to spare,
The world was new and love was true,
Men brave and maidens Inti

A rose-grown cot was the happy lot.
Of the bridegroom and his bride,
With a garden gay for a primitive way
And a moss-grown well beside.

But we've passed all that and a five-room flat is the home of our modern pair No drift wood's light on the hearth at

To list to the old, old tale.

He brings no flowers wet with fragrant showers
That he's gathered in the dell,
But violets cey by a messenger boy
He sends his love to tell.
He proposes by wire in words of fire—
Ten little words alone—
And she whispers yes, as you may guess,
Over the telephone.

Then the wedding day and the word

The "obey"

Is stricken from the vow,
For thus they mate in the up-to-date,
In the present step-lively-now;
And Lobengrin is the joyous din
Of the planela's tune,
As off the skim of the purple rim

Civic Improvement League.

Civic Improvement League.

The Civic Improvement League held a very interesting meeting last Monday evening, the president, Mr. C. B. Cooke, Mrs. Beverly Munford and many other members of the League being present.

Subjects of interest relating to the improvement of the city in matters of cleanliness were alseussed, Mrs. Munford making some pertinent and practical remarks. The necessity of taking care of trees within the city limits, and of setting them out wherever they are needed, came up for animated discussion. The League decided on taking steps to prevent, as far as possible, further vandalism to trees by using them as hitching posts. It was also decided that prompt and proper treatment should be asked for when needed to restore trees to a condition of vigor and beauty.

Dr. Alderman's Address.

Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, of the University of Virginia, who comes to Richmond March 23d, to make an address before the Richmond Edward of the March 24th, has chosen as the evening of March 24th, has chosen as the subject of his address. "The Education of All People."

Dr. Alderman's standing as a man of latters, the position he occupies, and the present and future issues underlying all that he is to talk about, renders his anticipated visit a matter of primary importance in the history of the association and a matter of great interest to its friends and the public at large.

Social Great Success

Social Great Success.

The social at the Association building at the Reservoir Tuesday night, was a great success. Over two hundred employees of the Virginia Passenger and Power Company and their families were present, and by their hearty participation in the contests made the evening delightfully informal.

FAITH TREMBLING

By MADELINE BRIDGES.

Mary Ainge de Vere, who writes under the name, "Madeline Bridges," was born in Brooklyn in 184-, and still resides there. She is a frequent and popular contributor to leading magazines and journals.

Building my little Building my little nost each carly spring, It might be easy then to keep God's word, His praise to sing;

Tending my little ones,-of love secure, Knowing no agony for time misspent, Or thought impure!

A bright-winged creature of the sunshine born, Idle and lovely I could live and die Without self-scorn:

To take my utmost will of summer sweet; Nor dread, when the swift end came near, My Judge to meet!

If I were only made Patient, and calm, and pure, as angels are,

I had not been so doubtful,-sore afraid

To bear the heavy cross that martyrs take, The passion and the pain of womanhood For my Lord's sake.

But strong, and fair, and young,

I dread my glowing limbs,-my heart of fire,

My soul that trembles like a harp full strung To keen desire!

Dr. Lacey in Winchester.

Dr. Lacey in Winchester.

The Rev. Dr. J. Horace Lacey, of Clarksyllic, Tenn. to whom a call has been extended from the Presbyterian Church in Winchester, is temporarily occupying that pulpit.

Dr. Lacey is said by those who know him to be a man of broad education, and as a pulpit orator to be graceful and fluent. He is also quoted as a delightful companion and an accomplished conversationalist. His decision with regard to the call to Winchester is not known as yet, and may not be for several weeks.

During his stay in Winchester Dr. Lacey will be the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas K. Cartwell at the Hotel Evans, and he will also be extensively entertained by other prominent elitzens. Dr. Lacey is a Virginian, and is the brother of the wife of the Rev. Dr. James Power Smith, of Richmond. His incle, the late Dr. Tucker Lacey, was a former pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Winchester. It therefore seems expocutify appropriate that the call should have been extended to the nephew.
